The Institute of Chemistry FEBRAS and the Far East Branch of the Scientific Council on Adsorption and Chromatography of RAS will host the 2nd International Symposium on Sorption and Extraction (ISSE-2009) on November 9-14, 2009. The Symposium meetings will take place in the form of an Internet-conference. The reports submitted by the participants will be uploaded in advance at the Symposium web-site. During the specified above time period it will be possible, under forum conditions, to ask questions, exchange opinions and provide general comments. A book of proceedings is scheduled for publishing the contributed papers.

Main Symposium topics:

- Theoretical issues of sorption and extraction
- Synthesis and study of novel sorbents
- Novel extractants and extraction systems
- Sorption and extraction processes and technologies and their application
- Sorption and extraction in chemical analysis

Working languages – English and Russian.

Registration takes place online at the symposium site <http://www.ich.dvo.ru/~isse/2009>.

Abstracts should be sent by e-mail in MS Word format to the Secretariat isse@ich.dvo.ru.

Registration fee

No registration fee is paid by the Symposium participants. A hard copy of the Symposium Proceedings volume can be sent upon request from the participants on a collect-on-delivery basis. Approximate price of the volume – an equivalent of 500 rubles (RUR).

To submit a paper the author should prepare a short summary, presentation in .pdf or .ppt format and, if needed, one or several figures to illustrate the material to be presented. The Information for Authors section of the site describes the procedure of the papers online publications. Please note, too big files (figures or presentations themselves) might not be read by some of the Symposium participants.

During the Symposium the authors will have the possibility to ask questions and hold a discussion on any paper under forum conditions. It is important for the authors to reply promptly to the questions concerning their papers. The e-mail announcements could be helpful in this regard. More detailed information on the papers publication and Symposium organization will be provided in a special technical forum at the ISSE site starting from July 01, 2009. Please consult this forum in case of any difficulties or address directly the Symposium Secretariat. See also the paper samples and papers of other Symposium participants.
